

The Working Lives and Struggles of Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders in California

Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander Americans

About the Survey

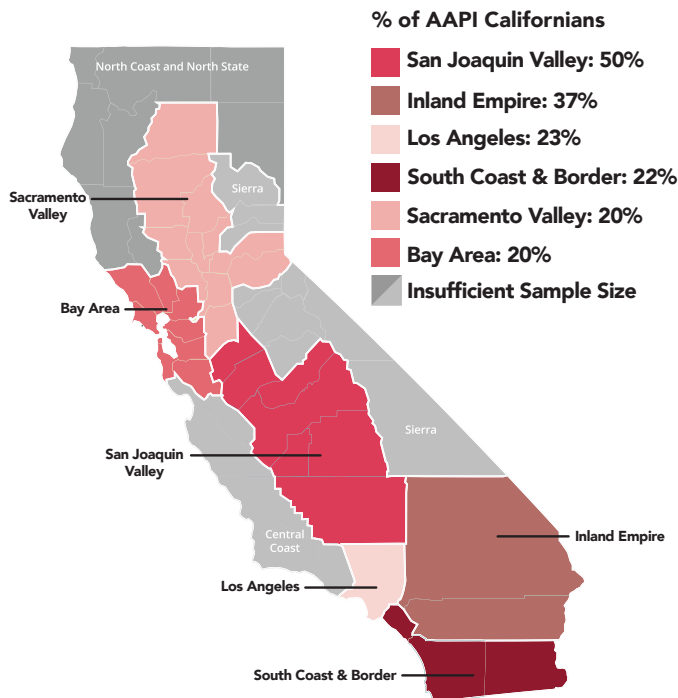

In November 2019, researchers from PRRI and AAPI Data released a landmark report on Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI) workers in California. The survey of 2,684 AAPI California residents explored experiences and perspectives of workers, many of whom are struggling with poverty.

Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders are the fastest-growing racial groups (and working-age population) in California and the nation. Between 2010 and 2017, most new immigrants (56%) to California came from Asia.

As with other racial and ethnic groups, the research tells the story of “two Californias” — one where some AAPI workers are financially stable and another in which AAPI workers report struggle significantly. This brief highlights key findings relevant to Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander American workers in California from the full report.

AAPI California Workers Struggling with Poverty Within Each Region

In California, the highest proportion of Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander adults reside in the Bay Area (28%) and the Central Valley (21%).

Key Findings

Nearly FOUR IN 10 AAPI workers in California are struggling with poverty.

AAPI Workers Struggling with Poverty

Snapshot of Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islander Americans in California

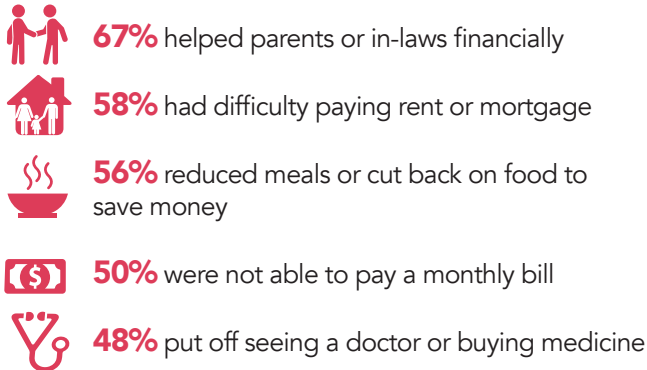

From the Census Bureau’s American Community Survey:

*From the PRRI/AAPI survey

Economic Hardships and Concerns

Share of Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander American workers in California who experienced hardships in the past 12 months:

Share of Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islanders American workers in California who are:

Views on the American Dream and Economic Mobility Among Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islanders Americans in California

52% still believe in the American Dream (if you work hard, you'll get ahead), compared to 62% of all AAPI Californians.

38% of struggling Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander workers in California believe in the American Dream.

58% believe it is harder to achieve the American Dream here than in other states.

56% agree that hard work is not a guarantee of success, compared to 55% of all AAPI Californians.

Hardships on the Job

Share of Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander American workers in California who said they or someone in their household experienced the following in the past 12 months:

Views on the Economy, Employers, and Policymakers

Share of Native Hawaiian and Pacific Islander American workers in California believe that:

The U.S. economy unfairly favors the wealthy 81%

Public officials do not care what they think 70%

Employers generally see them as replaceable 68%

It is important to organize so that employers do not take advantage of them 82%

For more data and survey methodology, please see the full report, in English, at: irvine.org/learning/aapi